TEN MINERS DIE IN FAYETTE BLAST

One Hundred And Twenty Men Are In the Gates Mine At the Time of Explosion — 7 O'Clock Last Night

BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Six of the Dead Men Known to Have Been Married With Large Families — Bodies Are Recovered—Cause of the Explosion Is Not Determined

Gates, Pa., July 26.—Ten miners were killed in an explosion at the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick Coal and Coke company last night at 8 o'clock. The bodies were recovered early today, the last body being removed at 7:30 o'clock.

The explosion was caused, it is thought, by a spark made by a coal cutting machine while in operation. The explosion is a "local" explosion, occurring in one section of the mine. The men were killed instantly. The fire which followed the explosion filled the mine with smoke and made it difficult for the rescue workers to get to the scene of the tragedy and secure the bodies of the victims. The mine was damaged very little.

The dead are:

Alfred Kittle, Walter L. Covington, colored; Rast Hogan, colored; Thomas Cosrokinsky, Adam Guy, John Sachar, John Dourel, Andy Shuski, Mike Sirra and John Skolink.

All of the men killed in the blast are married and have large families.

An explosion at the Gates mine in February, 1922, killed 25 men.

Flames Of Unknown Origin Threatens To Wipe Out Business District Of Normal Town

Loss estimated at $150,000 was caused by a disastrous fire of unknown origin at an early hour this morning, which threatened for a time to wipe out the entire main business block, Liberty avenue and Third street, in California.

The flames were discovered at 3:15 o'clock by the night watchman of the borough, in the Independent pool room in Third street. A fire alarm was immediately sounded, and the California firemen were soon upon the scene. Their equipment, however, proved inadequate to fight the fast spreading flames, and calls were sent to neighboring towns. Twenty-two minutes after the Charleroi department was called, they had three streams of water on the flames, which by this time had spread to adjoining buildings. Brownsville department came in first, and with the joint assistance of California and Charleroi, succeeding in squelching the flames after a hard fight of four hours. The departments of West Brownsville, Fayette City and Bentleyville also responded.

The pool room building, a two-story frame structure owned by William Weaver, burned to the ground with an estimated loss of $15,000 to building, and $3,000 to the equipment The pool room proprietors, "Jim" Roberts, Tony Senferi, and Bryson Shutte, closed up at 3 o'clock, and at the time of their departure, there were no visible signs of the forthcoming disaster. However, shortly after they left, the flames soon had the building in their grip, stating in the rear of the structure. It is the general supposition that the flames started from burning cigarette butts discarded on the floor.

In a short time the flames had spread to the adjoining buildings on either side continuing around to Liberty avenue. Eight business buildings and residences were scourged and greatly damaged by the flames.

The First National Bank building, the two-story brick building located on the corner of Liberty avenue, and Third street, despite the fact that flames worked disastrously on either side of it, remains intact, with damage only by fire and water to the extent of $3,000. The Charleroi firemen concentrated their efforts on saving this structure and were successful. Dr. H. A. Brickley, a dentist, who occupies several rooms above the bank, was able to save the greater part of his equipment by moving it from the building.

The residence owned by the bank and occupied by the cashier, William S. Nicodemus, adjoining the bank in Liberty avenue, was burned to the ground with an $8,000 loss. William Ridle, a crippled stepson of Mr. Nicodemus was carried from the burning home overcome by the smoke He was taken to the home of a neighbor and there soon revived.

HEALTH OFFICIALS URGE ACTION NOW

Increasing Virulence of Smallpox Makes It a Public Duty For All Persons Not Recently Vaccinated —Is a Public Duty

COOPERATION IS ASKED

Washington County Association of Health Boards, Through John N. O'Neil, President, And Miss Elizabeth Ostrander, Secretary, State Importance

The Washington County Association of Health Boards has issued a letter to all boards of health within the county, asking cooperation against the further spread of smallpox, which appears to prevail to such a general extent at the present time.

The communication is issued over the signature of John N. O'Neil, secretary of the Charleroi board of health, and president of the county association, and Miss Elizabeth Ostrander of Donora, secretary.

The association says that apprehensive over the growing number of smallpox cases throughout the country, at an unseasonable period, and the fear felt if its spread is not checked, that a more serious situation may develop during the fall and winter, urges that all industrial plants, school boards, municipalities, Red Cross chapters, and medical advisors insist on vaccination and revaccination to prevent the spread of the malady.

The Association also urges that wherever necessary free clinics be established, and that tourists going into another state, provide themselves with certificates of vaccination. It is pointed out that a large percentage of the population is not vaccinated, therefore unprotected against smallpox The increasing virulence of the malady makes it a public duty for all persons not recently vaccinated, to have it done now.

Fraternal Societies And Community Clubs To Help Get Hospital

LOCAL FINANCIERS TO BE PROTECTED

New York, July 26.—Demanding security for American investors in German bonds to be the basis for the sale of the bonds in this country, J. P. Morgan sails today for England on the Atlantic transport liner Minnewaska, where he expects to advise the allied statesmen at the London reparation conference.

The banker made it clear in a formal statement that he was not going in an official capacity, that this was his annual vacation, but if he were asked, he would be glad to advise with the members of the conference.

"It goes without saying that as bankers we should not ask the American investor to buy German bonds unless and until the allies have in their own time ,in their own way, and for their own reasons, determined on a policy which will, in our opinion, give security to the bondholders." Morgan said.

"If this very simple and obvious fact is borne in mind, it will, I think, be found that most of the questions now under discussion, answer themselves."

Since the hospital will be a direct benefit to the entire community and since the spirit back of the campaign to get $150,000 for a building fund coincides with the ideals of most fraternal societies, civic clubs and other organizations of community motive, the executive committee voted yesterday that it was only right and proper that these groups of individuals have an opportunity to give to the hospital.

Chairman Kerfoot W. Daly made this announcement after the meeting yesterday, which he described as being the best meeting the committee has yet had. He said he was most encouraged by the interest of those present who showed a determination that spelled success, if the community gave the present movement its cooperation.

The movement to enlist the support of fraternal and other organizations, clubs and societies, brought about by several members of the fraternal societies themselves, has been started in earnest.

The committee appointed by Chairman Daly to have charge of this work is composed of five members of the executive committee: S. L. Woodward, chairman, George W. Might, John B Schafer, C. S. McKean and John P. Ferry. This committee is already at work getting in touch with these organizations.

"I cannot think of any way in which these organizations can better permanently record themselves in the interests of local humanitarian activities than by subscribing as much to the building of the hospital as they can pay in the next five years," stated Mr. Woodward. "The committee hopes that every fraternal order and every other organization will give me an opportunity to send a speaker to their next meeting to explain briefly the hospital proposition. Letters have been written to each of the organizations asking for an opportunity to do this, but I will be glad to have the matter anticipated and taken up with me or any member of the committee directly. There is no time to be lost. What we do must be done without any delay."

There will be an opportunity to memorialize gifts in the hospital. A list is now being prepared of various rooms which will make it possible for an organization or an individual by subscribing a certain amount to have a bronze tablet placed on the door or in the proper place in the hospital, according to what is being memorialized, some permanent work of appreciation of the gift.

Holy Name Convention Held In Washington September 18-20 Next

New York, July 26—The National Holy Name convention to be held in Washington September 18-20 next, has been endorsed by his eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York

In a letter of endorsement to the Very. Rev Michael J. Ripple, O. P., P. G., National Director, his eminence said that he trusts that his diocese will be well represented at the convention.

Cardinal Hayes' letter reads in part as follows:

"I am pleased to learn of the approaching Holy Name convention at Washington in September. I am sure that the high and holy purpose of convening in the capital of the nation, thousands of our Catholic men who openly proclaim their loyalty to Christ our Lord and their devotion to His sacred name, will make for a more ardent attachment to religion, a deeper reverence for authority, divine and human, and greater love for our beloved country.

"I trust that the members of the Holy Name society of this diocese may be well represented at the convention."

It is expected that ten thousand delegates representing the 6,000 branches of the society in this country will attend the convention. The Catholic University will be the scene of the congress.

Jeff Pfeffer Showed Real Form Against Hubites Yesterday

Making his first start since he joined the Pirates, big Ed Pfeffer yesterday demonstrated that he still knows how to pitch when he worked the full nine innings and covered himself with plenty of glory, for he held the Braves in check, while his mates, by a bit of well-timed hitting, nosed out a 2-1 victory over the tailenders, who have been exceedingly troublesome to Bill McKechnie's boys all the season.

Joe Genewich was on the firing line for the Buccaneers engaged in a guessing contest most of the afternoon The two right-handers put up a classy slab duel, in which the outcome was clouded until the last man had been retired.

Each moundsman was touched for seven hits and four of these made by Pittsburgh were doubles, while the Braves were unable to get anything better than singles

Each pitcher issued three passes, one of those handed out by Greenwich being ordered by Acting Manager Dick Rudolph and this bit of strategy aided in putting the locals out of a dilemma in the last chapter. Only one Corsair fanned the breeze, while Pfeffer was credited with a couple of strikeouts.

"JEALOUS HUSBANDS" AT THE MAJESTIC

"Jealous Husbands," a First National picture, produced by M. C. Lever, and directed by Maurice Fourneur, which opens on next Monday and Tuesday at the Majestic theatre, is a remarkable photograph in many respects—and one of the most grippingly entertaining films see in some time It has to do with jealousy on the part of a husband which has its culmination in the breaking up of a home, et cetera.

The management of the Majestic is confident that it is the type of film-play that you prefer, and hope that nothing will prevent you from seeing it on the dates herein mentioned.

Otis Skinner Tells of Successful Stage Hoax

In the fall of 1887 the theater was opened with Dandy Dick, a rasping play by Pinero. In it I had to play the violin, and I do not and never could play the violin! The illusion however, was well managed I tuned my fiddle and was accompanied by Effie Shannon—a charming actress—upon the piano. I bowed the instrument pantomimically against an opening in the window curtains, behind which Widmer, our leader, played "My Pretty Jane" with great sweetness.

Heavens knows how many times we rehearsed it. Miss Shannon didn't play the piano any too well, but she really had to play and she was nervous. I was praying that the audience would not detect the trick and jeer at me It was fearfully difficult, for we had lines to speak through the music The trick finished, I was astounded at receiving an insistent encore.

We could not repeat without repeating the scene, lines, business and all The house had taken the bait and believed it real I bowed repeatedly in agony and depreciation, while Daly was tying himself into knots of mirth down in the front entrance Widmer had been altogether too good'—From Footlights and Spotlights By Otis Skinner

FIRE THREATENS NORMAL TOWN

H. A Kiefer, proprietor of a hardware store in Third street, suffers a loss of $15,000 to stock with small insurance. The building, a two-story frame structure, is owned by Joseph Sisomondo of Donora, who estimates his loss at $20,000.

The California Fruit Store was damaged to extent of $2,000, $1,000 to the building and $1 000 to the stock.

The two-story frame dwelling in Third street, occupied by John Bullock, was partially destroyed, $4,000 being the estimated loss.

The Victor Clothing store conducted by Joe Levine also received its share of the flames. A cost of $2 000 is estimated for repairs to the building and $3 000 loss to the stock

Samuel Barnum of California is the owner of the last three buildings mentioned and was a heavy loser in the fire

Mrs Elizbeth Rohrer, who occupies the up-stairs rooms above the Victory Clothing store, estimates her loss to household furnishings at $500.

On the alley in the rear of the buildings, a small shed came in the path of the spreading flames and the owner, Myer Goldstein, figures his loss to be $3,000, including five tons of sugar stored in the building

In addition to the structures mentioned a number of nearby places were damaged by smoke and water, and in some instances by the flames

The visiting firemen left the scene shortly after 8 o'clock, when the flames were completely under control.

Wood in Matches

Tons of wood are consumed weekly in Europe and America in the manufacture of matches, which were originated in 1827. One firm alone uses 623 tons of timber a week in its match output. The logs used average about a foot in diameter and ten feet in length The match sticks are usually immersed in a solution that will prevent their smouldering, as one of the safety requirements.

The dub golfer had made eight distinct efforts before he succeeded in getting his mashie shot away Then he looked at the scarred earth and the freshly cut divots lying around him in reckless profusion. To keep the works of a watch clean cut a piece of white paper the size of the cover and, after soaking the paper in petrol, place it within the inner case The paper should be periodically removed and a fresh piece, also soaked in petrol, substituted. Egyptian Barber Had First Idea of Organ

More than two thousand years ago a barber in Alexandria discovered that in moving his mirror air was forced through the tubes which were common in mirrors at that time. This caused a curious musical sound to be emitted. So struck was he by this peculiarity that he set about making an instrument which was the foundation of the modern organ.

After several experiments he made a water-flute, in which air was forced by bellows through an inverted cone which led to flutes controlled by a keyboard, the pressure being kept uniform by water.

After a thousand years a rival instrument made its appearance. This was of a similar pattern, but, instead of water, weights regulated the pressure.

In 951 an organ was erected at Winchester. It had twenty-six bellows and ten pipes to each key. The two men who sat at the keyboard "blew and sweated enormously." Later, a firm of organ makers in Germany succeeded in erecting the first really big instrument. The primary stops did not differ very much from those of today, although various novelties were introduced.

Among the innovations were the [illegible] others represented cock-crowing and goat bleating. Though these novelties have now fallen into disuse, an organ with one of these nightingale stops is still to be seen in Rome.

First "Flying" Feat Rather Crude Affair

A slate tablet in the yard of Old North church, Boston, marks the place from which the first flying feat in this country was made. The flight was accomplished by John Childs, an Englishman, who had become famous for his gliding flights from the tops of steeples. His glider was a crude affair, the operator being suspended by a sort of harness The length of the flight was about 700 feet. It was successfully repeated. The inscription on the tablet reads: "Here, on Sept. 13, 1757, John Childs, who had given public notice of his intention to fly from the steeple of Dr Cutler's church, performed it to the satisfaction of a great number of spectators. In 1923, the year of the first continuous flight across the continent, this tablet has been placed by the Massachusetts Society of the Colonial Dames, to commemorate the two events"

Puzzled Germans

There was once an operator at the Crookhaven wireless station named Binns, whose breakfasts for 365 days every year consisted of two hard-boiled eggs. During the war he was an operator in a very important position in the grand fleet and a certain most secret signal was required to be sent. He was puzzled for a moment, and then, with his hand upon the Morse key, tapped out the extraordinary words, which no doubt puzzled every German listening in: "Two hard-boiled eggs transmitting. Urgent." He rapped this out half a dozen times and the stations around the coast were much mystified. But Crookhaven stations sprang alert at once. They knew it was Binns. They took his secret message for the admiralty and replied: "O. K! Two hard boiled eggs" The result of that code message was claimed to be the sinking of a German cruiser, writes William Le Queux in "Things I Know."

Two Claim Quotation

In her book entitled "Borrowings," Mrs. Sarah Yule credits the quotation "If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door" to Emerson She said she copied it in a notebook from a lecture delivered by the great philosopher. But the quotation was the occasion of a long controversy, owing to Elbert Hubbard's claim to its authorship. Hubbard stated positively upon two different occasions that he was the author of the quotation. Mrs. Yule's book was published in 1889. It appears that Hubbard's claim was not made until later.

Useful Sunflower

A vessel recently docked at Hull, England, with a cargo of 2,000 tons of sunflower seeds. These seeds yield a valuable food for cattle and poultry, and the oil expressed from them is almost equal in its qualities to olive oil. The doctor depends upon them for one of his soporifics, while in the east of Europe they steep them in boiling water to serve as an infant's food. The Indians used to grind them into a flour for making bread. Even the stems and leaves can be utilized, the former as a cattle food, the latter as fuel, while the ashes left form a valuable manure.

Ostrich Legend "Bunk"

The ostrich does not hide its head in the sand when fear afflicts it. This, at any rate, is the bold proclamation made by Vilhjalmur Stefanson, the Arctic explorer, in an article in American Mercury. Nowhere has a responsible observer ever seen an ostrich thrust its head into the sand to escape a foe.

The legend has persisted for nearly 2,000 years. Perhaps 2,000 years hence, despite all the naturalists and all the iconoclasts, people will still believe that ostriches are as silly as Pliny thought they were.

Strength of Pigeons

The power of a pigeon has been investigated. French scientists recently made flying pigeons unwind a thread wrapped around a reel equipped with a brake, and measured their "horse power." A one-pound pigeon developed the equivalent of one horse power for thirty pounds weight. The experimenters complain, however, that the pigeons were evidently not doing their best.

Bell-Bird of Africa

The loudest voiced bird is undoubtedly the bell-bird or companero of South America and Africa. This feathered songster gives forth a loud, clear note almost exactly like the tolling of a bell. The companero, which is a white bird, about the size of a pigeon, has on its head a horny growth, and this, connected with the roof of the bird's mouth, is the cause of the peculiar tone.

Shakespeare's Comedy by The Vivian Players

Midst all the great modern productions in the theatrical world of today, the plays written by William Shakespeare, more than 300 years ago, never cease to have a tremendous appeal. This comedy, at once romantic, philosophical and picturesque is always one of the author's most popular works.

No organization in the country offers a program or more sound and dignified quality and of more sterling merit than the Vivian Players of New York City. Mr. Vivian's name itself, is a guarantee of the quality of talent to be found in his companies.

"IT'S JIM!"

"Shut off the power!" roared the foreman, and with a sickening silence the great wheels of the big shop became silent.

For weeks the giant engines had been throbbing, the presses pounding, the rollers clanging, filling the mill with their low rumbling notes.

"A man's been caught in the press!" It spread quickly among the startled workers. And then—"It's Jim!"

Carefully they lifted him from the engaging clutches of the huge press. Tenderly they deposited the mangled, bleeding body on the first-aid stretcher.

"Call the hospital—somebody—QUICK!"

It is but a matter of minutes, and then the all too familiar clang of the ambulance gong is heard.

The foreman demands that the crowd stand back.

How sympathetically they listen to the groans and moans of the injured man—the thrill of fear! "It might have been me! What a narrow escape!"

Then they lifted him gently into the waiting ambulance. The crowd stands around in silence. The motor starts! And Jim is rushed away to the hospital—to recovery or to death.

And whether he lives depends on whether the wounds are dressed quickly enough in the right way and whether or not he is properly taken care of, whether his case is properly diagnosed and whether it is properly treated. And whether the doctor is able to give the best diagnosis, depends on the hospital.

This is not an unusual occurrence. Most of us never give much thought to the hospital—it is just a matter of course. But a hospital is as necessary to the sick or injured person that needs it as water, air and food are for you.

You do not know when you are going to need a hospital. The wise person looks ahead. It is not enough to save money to support your economic wants if you lack the vision to provide facilities to preserve your health, to cure your injuries and heal your sickness.

Often life depends on seconds! Nothing must stand in the way of the instant response to the call for help, nothing must prevent getting the unfortunate victim to the hospital as quickly as possible. A few seconds may turn the balance between life and death.

With the new hospital will come suitable ambulance service; with the ambulance service will come a guarantee of promptness in getting the victims of misfortune to the hospital and at this new hospital, when it is built, every call will be able to get the kind of treatment it needs.

But it will cost money to build this hospital. And the only way we have of getting the money is to secure gifts from the residents of this community who have the foresight, generosity and enough humanitarian instinct, to promise to pay during the next five years enough money to guarantee a building fund.

Preparation is absolutely necessary to safeguard life in emergencies.

Which is of most value to you—

EXIT JAN SMUTS.

Jan Smuts' defeat in the parliamentary elections in South Africa, though obviously welcome to the majority there, will be heard of with regret in the world at large, where he has long been famed as a statesman of vision and forward-looking idealism. In some respects his career suggests that of Woodrow Wilson, although he was longer in losing his hold in his own country. Like Wilson, he had personal characteristics that furnished useful material to his detractors and enemies. His clear-sightedness and penetrating intellect are said to have made him impatient of the slowness and narrowness of more ordinary men. Bitterness against him grew apace, and he lost ground the more rapidly after the death of his devoted supporter, General Botha, who had the gift of personal magnetism and the power to win the good will of large bodies of men.

The tide that set in against him was the more steady because of economic discontent and heavy taxation, which were of course inevitable in the after-war conditions under any leadership. He is also said to have been blamed for his liberal attitude toward the native negro population, the Nationalists and Laborites, now triumphant in combination, being more in sympathy with the old harsh Boer attitude toward the black man. Though the last of the great statesmen of the war period to be retired in the new and changed conditions, Jan Smuts nevertheless belongs to that ever-memorable time and is worthy of high rank among the aroused leaders of men who saved the world for free government and checked the threatened return to military despotism.

GREAT EXPOSITION IS PLANNED FOR TEXAS

St. Louis World's Fair to Be Outdone, Is Hope.

Bowie, Tex.—While no date, nor even a definite year, has been fixed for the event, preliminaries for holding a centennial exposition in Texas have been completed. A committee of 100 citizens living in many sections of the state has been chosen to direct development of the scores of contributory enterprises. The chairman of this committee is Cato Sells of Dallas, who was commissioner of Indian affairs during the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

At a recent meeting of the committee in Austin, at which a temporary organization was effected, it was generally agreed that the exposition should be held within three years. After the meeting, leading daily newspapers of the state exhibited far more enthusiasm than formerly over the project and some of them have declared in favor of raising $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 to carry it out. That the exposition should be on a larger scale than the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis is generally agreed among representative men, also that all nations of the world should be [illegible].

Probably no subject since Texas gained its independence from Mexico in 1836 has so engaged and engrossed the people of the Lone Star state. The state's claimed 265,780 square miles—its very bigness—as well as the richness and variety of its resources impel the committee of 100 to attempt something big.

Sells Napoleon's Flags in Tiny Bits to Tourists

Paris.—A watchman employed in the Invalides was recently arrested, charged with clipping bits off of Napoleon's battle flags draped over the emperor's tomb and selling them as souvenirs to tourists at $10 a piece. It is believed the watchman entirely disposed of two battle flags, cutting off a tiny square of the faded, blood-stained, shell-tattered bunting every time a tourist was willing to pay a sufficient price.

Playful Fireball Rips Roads, Trees

London.—A fireball played havoc in Stansted, Essex, when it struck the bottom of a tree trunk and started on a tour of destruction, according to the Stansted correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, who was hurled from his automobile by an explosion the fireball caused.

Here is what happened:

It tore away the trunk of a tree near its basis, without damaging the upper branches.

Came up again under the roadway, with an explosion, several yards away, tearing a large crater in the ground.

Cut through a gas main, which burned afterwards for two hours.

Knocked a motorcyclist off his machine.

Smothered with dirt and stone, Rowland Norman of Walpole farm, who was getting in his automobile.

Traveled along a line of barbed-wire fence for 40 yards, wrecking a wooden fence and blowing up portions of the ground.

Tore away a corner of a house.

[illegible] boring houses by its numerous explosions, and finally rolled back near where it first appeared and sank in the ground.

LAWN FETE IS WELL ATTENDED

One of the largest crowds that ever attended the annual lawn fete, given under the auspices of the Home and Hospital Club of North Charleroi, gathered at Coyle's field last night and spent an enjoyable evening.

Every year the ladies of the Home and Hospital club hold a lawn fete as a means of obtaining money for the local hospital, to help defray the expenses. The people of thecommunity have been very generous in their contributions to this worthy cause and last night saw one of the largest turnouts ever witnessed by the women in charge.

The ladies desire to express their sincere thanks to the firemen of North Charleroi for their untiring efforts in making the affair a success and also to those who helped in any way, whatsoever, in their contributions or their time.

HOPES ENTERTAINED OF A SETTLEMENT

London, July 26—The atmosphere of the inter-allied conference was decidedly brighter today.

A majority of the delegates left to attend a naval review near Portsmouth, while Secretary of State Hughes and Ambassador Kellogg were week end guests of Lord and Lady Astor at the latter's country home, Cliveden. They will return Sunday night.

High hopes were entertained that differences over guarantees and sanctions might be straightened out before a plenary session of the reparations conference, scheduled for 4 p. m. Monday.

Oldtime Apple Sauce Lacking in Vitamins

Mother killed a valuable vitamin when she made apple sauce by the old recipe, Edward F. Kohman, Walter H. Eddy and Victoria Carlsson charged in a joint paper recently presented before the American Chemical society. Vitamin C, the vitamin which prevents scurvy, was the one destroyed.

The experts told how the fruit should be prepared to preserve this vital food factor and also prevent corrosion of cans after cannings, says the Kansas City Star. All fruits use oxygen in a breathing process not unlike the breathing of animals. It is this oxygen in the fruit which destroys the vitamin and the way to prevent the destruction is to get the oxygen out of the apples before the cooking starts.

This can be done by peeling and quartering the apples and keeping them overnight under water containing about one per cent salt. Deprived of oxygen supply from the air in this way, the apples use up the oxygen in their tissues. This drowning of the apples saves vitamin C.

Tiger's Habitat

The tiger does not inhabit Africa. It is found in Asia, where it has an extensive but rather localized distribution. Westwardly its range extends to the lower Euphrates and the southern shores of the Caspian, but it does not occur in Persia south of the Elburz mountains, nor in Beluchistan or Afghanistan. Northward, it is to be found throughout southern Siberia and Mongolia, eastward in the Amur valley to the sea of Okhotsk, in Sakhalin and Japan. The elevated Tibetan plateau has no tigers. Southward the species ranges throughout China, Siam, Burma, the Malay peninsula, Sumatra, Java and Bali, and all of India, but is unknown in Ceylon. This is evidence leading naturalists to conclude that the tiger is a comparatively recent immigrant into the South, and not naturally a tropical animal.

TO FEATURE JUNIOR WORK

The program which the Swarthmore Chautauqua association is offering Charleroi this year, is one in which a great deal of attention has been given to the children of the community.

A considerable number of the youngsters of the town are showing unusual interest in Junior Chautauqua. Each morning during the week, from 9 to 11 o'clock, the Chautauqua tent will be turned over to the Juniors. Two young ladies who have had especial training and experience in work with children will be in charge of the morning sessions. The young ladies who are coming to Charleroi this year are Minnie Sugg and Dorothy Dennis. One of the members of the tent crew, who has had special experience in work with the boys, assists the young ladies by taking charge of the games and stunts for the boys.

On the afternoon of the last day of Chautauqua, the Juniors give a pageant, which demonstrates the work they have done during the week.

The feature of Junior Chautauqua that will perhaps be of most interest to the boys and girls, is the organization of the Junior Chautauqua Town. The mayor and other officers of Junior Town will have charge of the conducting of Chautauqua patrons within the tent.

In addition to the songs, games and stunts which the Juniors learn, the program includes one entertainment especially for the children. This program is given on the afternoon of the closing day by Sultan, the educated pony, and his mistress, Miss Lindsay. Only the children who have junior tickets, will be admitted to the Junior Chautauqua.

FIRE DESTROYS THE GALLATIN POSTOFFICE

Fire of incendiary origin completely destroyed the two-story structure occupied by Justice of the Peace George Crompton and the Post office at Gallatin, shortly after midnight last night. Firemen from Donora and Monongahela rushed to the scene of the blaze but all efforts to save the burning structure proved fruitless. The firemen turned their attention to the adjoining building, the residence of Mr. Crompton, when they found the flames had gained beyond their control. Stamps, mail and all the furnishings of the building was a complete loss.

BOYS' ATTITUDE NOT POSE, INDEX OF FEELINGS

Chicago, July 26.—The nonchalant and often gay attitude of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb in the face of a possible sentence to death is not a pose; it's just a plain index of feelings, they explained to reporters.

"I don't want anyone to feel sorry for me, and I don't feel sorry for myself," Leopold explained. "I did it; got myself into this jam; I am not remorseful because the deed is done. We make life what it is; I've made mine and it's up to me to get myself out of the fix. I feel sorry for my father and brothers, but none for myself."

Loeb summed his case in substantially the same manner.

"I laugh because I am like the spectators in court," Loeb said. "When something funny comes up, I laugh with the rest of them. When something interesting comes up, I become interested.

"When things are dull, I'm bored.

"I'm in a jam and there's no use squawking. Whatever will happen to me, will happen, and that's all there is to it."

MOTORISTS ARE VICTIMS OF ROGUES

Harrisburg, July 26—Despite repeated warnings against fake automobile organizations Pennsylvania motorists are steadily being swindled out of thousands of dollars by smooth solicitors for these concerns, according to J. Clyde Myton, secretary of the Pennsylvana Motor Federation, the state division of the American Automobile Association.

For several days past two slick young men have been working in Harrisburg and were apparently reaping a rich harvest when they learned that the Federation officials were on their trail and decamped. They were selling memberships in some sort of a motor drivers' association and were offering anywhere from three to five year memberships for $10. In fact the dues were whatever the solicitor thought the prospect would pay. This organization is now being investigated by the Federation.

Last week Max Herman and J. Gusky, claiming to represent the "North American Automobile Owners Association" were arrested in Pittsburgh on a charge of conspiracy. Their scheme was some sort of automobile insurance and their methods were such that the State Insurance Department notified the organization to discontinue all business.

Secretary Myton advises all automobilists that the only legitimate, national organization of motorists is the American Automobile Association which has been in existence for 22 years and which comprises over 500 motor clubs scattered all over the United States. It has 67 clubs in Pennsylvania alone. There was, for a short time, a split from the A. A. A., which flourished briefly under the name of the National Motorists' Association, but the breach has been healed.

Five Arrests Are Made On Liquor Charges

Five alleged violators of the liquor laws were taken to the county jail last night, four from the Eldersville district and the fifth, a resident of Republic, arrested at Republic on a charge of transporting liquor.

The machine of William Sylvester aged 22, of Republic, was found to contain four cases of supposedly bonded whisky when it was searched by state troopers, who apparently had been tipped that Sylvester was going to try to run the contraband through Washington last night.

Arrests in the Eldersville district included: Richard King, aged 48; Mike Sabola, aged 32; Ernest Knox, aged 25; and Thomas Knox, aged 29 Information against Ernest and Thomas Knox was made by Constable Joe Neil, while Constable J. F. Adams arrested the other two defendants. All were arrainged before Justice of the Peace John L. Scott, of Hanlin station, and in default of bail were taken to the county jail.

Sylvester, whose arrest occurred late in the evening, was not arraigned for a hearing.

Holland Cows Always Well Taken Care Of

Cows in Holland are treated with as much consideration as human beings They have the best of food Their sheds are furnished They even have overcoats when they go out.

There are lace curtains in the windows of many Dutch cowsheds And the floors are laid with shining white tiles, kept spotlessly clean.

Lest her tail should drag in the dirt, the Dutch cow has it held up by a neat chain from the roof. Her horns are scrubbed and polished. She is carefully groomed, says a writer in the London Mail.

As she spends eight months of the year indoors, perhaps these comforts are necessary To lighten the darkness of winter the cowshed is provided with electric light There is also some kind of heating system.

The Dutch spring is generally very cold and windy Therefore, when the lucky Dutch cow is turned out to graze in May she is well wrapped up. The pampered animal must not catch cold Everything, from the shining milk pails to the beautifully carved milking stools, is as clean as it is humanly possible to make it.

There is a farm in Holland where pigs are kept—and where each pig has a sort of little bathroom attached to its sty.

Candles Play Big Part in Chinese Ceremony

While both domestic-made and imported candles are extensively sold in China, their uses by the Chinese are distinct The imported candle is preferred for illumination and it is almost exclusively used for this purpose.

The Chinese made product, unlike the foreign candle, which is usually white, comes in a variety of shapes sizes and colors, red being the most general, says the Detroit News The red candle is used for ceremonial purposes at weddings and at other gala events

In recent years foreign candles stained red have been imported to aid in filling the demand at what is perhaps the world's greatest candle-burning event, the Chinese New Year Those of plain white take their place in funeral ceremonies at the death of elderly persons and those of light blue or green are to be seen at funeral services held for younger persons.

At weddings candles decorated with wax flowers are used as well as others made into figures of the dragon and the phoenix propitious sighs for a newly married couple. In these the wick is made of reeds or grass.

HOPES FOR CHEAPER JAM DASHED TO EARTH

Washington July 26.—Hopes for cheaper home-made jam for the great American family during 1924 were dashed by officials here today.

There is little prospect for reduction in the price of sugar before the end of the summer canning season, now at its height, officials said, explaining that even if President Coolidge reduces tariffs on crude sugar imports within the next month the new rates cannot become effective until 30 days after the proclamation.

Refined sugar is selling at an average of 7 6 cents a pound retail, it was said, and a lower price cannot be expected sooner than two or three months

Speed of Radio.

You may not believe this, but it's true. A speaker in New York is heard by a radio fan in San Francisco before he is heard by the people in his own audience at the back of the hall in New York This is because the audience hears by sound waves which travel only 1,126 feet a second, while the radio fan has the sound brought to him by vibrations traveling 186,000 miles a second. The difference in hearing time in this case is only a fraction of a second, but it's as uncanny as it's hard to believe.—Exchange.
